Order of Christian Funerals

During the past 40 years many of the rites of our church have undergone various forms of renewal and revision, and some are undergoing another round of revision after recommendations were made after using them for several years. Among those revised were the rituals surrounding the death of a loved one.

Those of us who are older can remember the Requiem Mass with the black vestments and the singing of the ancient Dies Irae and the casket being covered with a black pall and surrounded by six candles. During the wake in the funeral home (which could be three days) the priest came and prayed the rosary with the mourners.

During the 1970's the Requiem Mass became the Mass of the Resurrection and the vesture changed from black to white. It was soon realized that this title was inaccurate since the Church has only one Mass of the Resurrection, that is Easter Sunday. So, in the 1980's it was changed to the Mass of Christian Burial.

On November 2, 1989, the new funeral rites became mandatory use when they were formally promulgated by the Bishops of the United States and approved by the Congregation for Divine Worship and the Discipline of the Sacraments in Rome. This new rite also revised some of the terminology used as well.

Properly called the Order of Christian Funerals it views the funeral for a deceased person as being celebrated in three parts: 1) the Vigil for the deceased, 2) the Funeral Mass, and 3) the Rite of Committal.

During the Vigil for the deceased (what people commonly call the wake) the prayer service that takes place should include readings from sacred scripture, a short homily, and prayers of intercession. A member of the family or a friend may also speak in remembrance of the deceased (eulogy) during this prayer service.

The Funeral Mass (it is no longer called the Mass of Christian Burial, even though this term continues to be seen in newspaper obituaries and in printed programs) shows through word and ritual the strong connection to Baptism: honoring the casket with holy water (recalling the day of Baptism), the placing of the white pall (reminiscence of the white baptismal garment) and the Easter Candle (symbol of the resurrected Christ). The homily given during the Funeral Mass should not be a eulogy, but rather an explanation of the scriptures and a reinforcement of our belief in the resurrection. The model for music used during the Funeral Mass is the Sunday Mass. It must be liturgical and, except for a possible solo piece done either after Communion or at the Preparation of the Altar, the entire assembly should be encouraged to sing the hymns and parts of the Mass. A brief eulogy may be given at either the beginning of the Funeral Mass or after Communion.

The Rite of Committal takes place in the cemetery or the Mausoleum and includes a prayer over the grave, the committal prayer, intercessions, concluding prayer and blessing.

The Order of Christian Funerals also provides for Funeral Liturgies that do not take place within Mass and also for Funerals with the remains of the person present, as well as Funerals for Children and Funerals for baptized Christians who are not Roman Catholic.

Parish Funeral Ministry

During the recent Jubilee Year of Mercy, Pope Francis stressed the Corporal Works of Mercy as a call to all people to show the face of God. He emphasized that the "face of God is mercy."

One of the corporal works of mercy is "to bury the dead." We here at Our Lady of the Valley and Holy Cross Churches have a group of dedicated parishioners who assist at the celebration of a Funeral Mass. They help prepare the church for the funeral, Altar serve at the funeral, lector if necessary, and are Eucharistic Ministers. They assist the mourners gathered for the funeral Mass in any way necessary.

We are in need of several more people to assist in this necessary and rewarding ministry. If you might be interested in helping with this ministry or may want further information, please contact Father Wells at the Parish Center.
